CLARESHOLM, ALBERTA, FRIDAY, JULY 1, 1927

To Give You Service

The U.G.G. Elevator at your station is there to give you service, both in handling your grain and in furnishing farm supplies.

These farmer-owned elevators mean better returns for you in price and grade. The U.G.G. elevators set a standard which other companies have to meet.

U.G.G. elevators are there for the use and benefit of all farmers alike. Shareholders in the Company and farmers who are not shareholders all get the same service and treatment.

We do not claim to be perfect, but we do claim—and we believe justly—that the service given by the U.G.G. elevators and by all departments of the business brings real financial benefit to farmers.

If you agree that this is a fair claim, we shall appreciate your business at your nearest U.G.G. Elevator.

WORLD HAPPENINGS
BRIEFLY TOLD

For the first time seven judges took their seats on the bench of the Supreme Court of Canada, the Supreme Court was enlarged last session to its present complement.

Congratulations upon the recent opening of the Canadian Pacific terminal at Calcutta have been transmitted by President Coolidge in a message to the government of Australia.

Liquor seized by the coastguard from rum runners outside the 12-mile limit can be introduced as evidence in the trials of the rum runners, the U.S. Supreme Court decided.

Managers and conductors of the Winnipeg Electric Railway have settled the question of wages by accepting the company's offer of one cent an hour increase each year with a three-year contract.

By the present tentative plans the Prince of Wales and Premier Baldwin will sail from England July 27, arriving in Quebec July 29. The Prince and the Premier will spend August 2, 3 and 4 in Ottawa as guests of their Excellencies, the Lord Mayors of Montreal and Lady Willington and of the Government of Canada.

One of the finest collections of Indian material in Canada consisting of bone, horn, stone and slate objects which was recently purchased by McGill University has just arrived at the David Ross McCord National Museum. This collection was dug from the ground many years ago in the district surrounding Brandon, Ont.

"First class is the word that Hon. George Hoadley, minister of agriculture, applies to Alberta crop prospects. He says that in 36 years of experience in the province he has never known the land in general to be in such good condition, and the crops that are coming will give every reason to expect a big season.

St. Frederick Sturges, director of the Dominion neurological hospital in commenting on the predictions of Herbert Brewster, of Washington, D.C., to the effect that 1927 will be a stormy year, said he does not regard such a prospect as probable, and that even if the year should prove to be stormy it would be impossible to forecast the fact this far in advance.

Observing Diamond Jubilee

Large Attendance Expected at Service in Westminster Abbey

Preparations are now well advanced for the great service in Westminster Abbey, July 1, which will mark the chief commemoration in London of Canada's Diamond Jubilee. The Dean of Westminster, Very Rev. Dr. Poley Norris, has drawn up an order of service which follows as nearly as possible that which was used when the Jubilee of Confederation was commemorated in the Abbey in 1917.

Owing to the King and Queen having a number of engagements to fill in Scotland so close to the date, it is feared it will be impossible for Their Majesties to attend the service. The Duke of Connaught already has indicated his intention to be present. Practically the whole number of representatives of embassies and legations have asked that seats be reserved for them.

Not to Be Tricked

Breat Britain has tried in many ways to leave the fiction that Moscow's diplomatic intentions are honest and that its word can be depended upon. She has always found to her cost that confidence of this overgrown rascal was badly misplaced. The Soviets are not the kind of people who let the right hand know what the left hand is doing. They make promises to one's face and break them behind his back.

Molding the Child's Life

A Warning to Mothers to Watch Childhood Dreams

An exhortation to mothers to study and control the all important dream life of their children, which when uncontrolled may lead to disaster, is contained in an article by Florence Hill Whitehorn in the June issue of Psychology Magazine.

Mrs. Whitehorn in emphasizing the importance of the child's dream life writes: "If, from childhood dreams that the staff of life and of vitality is obtained. The little child knows so much less than he believes; he believes in much more than he knows. Imagination is the king of his life, the priest of his faith. What for want of little he dreams about. What he has in dreams, this he aspires toward in his daily life. Dreams influence reality and reality gives out the material from which dreams are built."

"If it is hard," points out Mrs. Whitehorn, "for even the most logical and the most intelligent person to accurately distinguish between the ideas obtained out of practical living and those imagined, it is doubly difficult to be sure of what is true and what is false! Before we bring any child to account for the green pepper who has just forgotten their childhood. The old-time parent among our Puritan ancestors of having a child behave like a lion and then wonder why he has lost and often getting the punishment for him at the bedside bar, was a deplorable mistake of the past."

We should on the contrary, guard our child from trouble at night."

"In almost everybody there is a tendency toward some special type of dream," observes the article in "Psychology," "originating in a suppressed desire of some kind. It is not only our privilege but our duty to study our child and find out precisely the stuff he is made of through investigation of his dream life. Dream life is more than half the existence of children, and the parent may know the child and yet remain ignorant over their brains by suggestion toward right."

Will Always Bring Results

Success Always if Anything Worth Striving for is Advertised

Some time ago the people of Colorado Springs got the idea that there were great attractions in that place for tourists. Following up this bright idea they spent money. They efforts for several seasons to attract visitors, but without much success.

So they decided to advertise to the effect of advertising. This led, and the next year they increased the sum to $100,000. They advertised chiefly in newspapers, and the country over $8,000,000 visited Colorado Springs last year, carrying some 250,000 people. More than $6,000,000 more people came by train. These visitors spent about $12,000,000 in the Colorado Springs neighborhood. Not a had return for a $100,000 investment! Where there is no publicity the enterprise perishes. If there is something really worth while advertising of the right sort will make a great success of it.

Supporting Mother Country

Says Canada's Attitude is Most Satisfactory Aspect of Imbroglio

Dismissing the question of the Soviet in his paper, the Observer, J. L. Garvin says: "Canada has set a magnificent example in its support of the mother country. Canada, locally, has no grievance comparable to ours, but on the one hand Mackenzie King and the common imperial interest now at stake and on the other he brings Canada as well as Britain into the world with the unchanged position of America. The devotion of Ottawa is by far the most satisfactory aspect of the whole imbroglio."

Was Once Object of Dread

People in Older Times Were Superstitious Over Eclipses of Sun

The fact that England is to experience on June 29th, the first total eclipse of the sun since 1824, recalls many accounts in ancient and medieval writings of the superstitious dread which eclipses caused before their time was fully understood.

In a thousand years there have been only 22 total eclipses of the sun in England. They occurred in 823, 855, 1025, 1132, 1140, 1155, 1209, 1421, 1452, 1598, 1652, 1710 and 1724. Between these dates legends of dreadful omens were current, and the people had plenty of time to grow up.

Astronomers of today are worried by the difficulties in the way of accurate prediction of the central line and the time of the eclipse. Four thousand years ago it would have worried them even more. Two Chinese astronomers Ho and Hsi, who failed to give notice of the eclipse of October 23, 2137 B.C., and added their offense by being drunk at the time, lost their heads. Since their time it has always been accounted unlucky by astronomers to be drunk during an eclipse.

In the Solomon Islands eclipses of the sun are credited to the machinations of sorcerers, while in some parts of New Guinea they are regarded as an omen of a good season or a great battle.

An eclipse in the Philippine Islands last year caused a great excitement among the mountain tribes, who believed on their armor and sound of hundreds of guns in the belief that crocodiles were rising from the ocean and eating the sun.

Shipping Salmon Eggs

The Largest Consignment Ever Made in Canada

The largest single consignment of salmon eggs ever shipped in Canada has just been made by the Fish Culture Service of the Department of Marine and Fisheries to the upper waters of Fraser River in British Columbia. Fifty million salmon eggs, in the "caviar" stage, were transferred in specially constructed crates from the Dominion Government hatchery at Pemberton on the Fraser River below Hell's Gate Canyon to the following spawning grounds in the upper Fraser: Stuart Lake, Francois Lake and the Queen's Lakes.

New Variety of Poultry

Said to be Much More Profitable Than Barnyard Fowl

"Turkey" is the name of a new variety of poultry which is under the first practical appearance at the Edmonton poultry show. It is not the result of a cross between the hen and turkey, as many have mistakenly supposed from the name (an impossible cross), but as a matter of fact it is a cross between a domestic hen and a bird of the pheasant species bred in Russia, and whose flesh is supposed to have the turkey flavor. This Russian bird has a bare red neck like a turkey, and the progeny of the cross has the same character, which may account for the suggestion that a turkey and a hen have been successfully mated. Its careful breeding on scientific lines, the strain has now been fixed, and the birds breed true to the new type.

The male Turkey has a comb and wattle, like a cock, but lacks like a turkey and wattle like a pheasant. This will probably be new, even to most poultrymen, but it is also a matter of interest to the general public, and one which our Minister of Agriculture might well attract the attention of all poultrymen. If the claims made for the new variety, "while the flesh is similar to that of a turkey, it has more flavor and is much larger than those of an ordinary chicken, that up to twenty weeks old they are the quickest growers of any known kind of fowl, and that the pullets usually begin to lay in five months," can be substantiated, the money poultryman will "catch on" the better.

If, in addition, as is claimed, the chicks are extremely hardy, easily raised, mature early, and are good layers, don't require any different care or food or more of it than barnyard fowls, and are much more profitable, all the farmers and their wives will be glad to know where and how they can get a start in this new line of poultry.

Official Live Stock Annual

Study of the past is especially valuable as a key to the future. There is no exception in the case of live stock. In the particular interest, as well as in the record, of such a publication is the new Official Live Stock Annual and meat trade Review, covering the year 1926, issued by the "Live Stock Branch" of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. It is indeed a vast volume of statistical information relating to the dealings in live stock and the trade in meat. The statistics of all classes are given month by month and for the last five years by year. The story of both our domestic and export trade is told and reviewed in the fullest detail.

Removing Old Roman Pavement

Found Century Ago Will Be Sent to British Museum

Discovered over a century ago at Harkness Hall, near Harton-on-Tyne, the Roman pavement, which is regarded as the finest, as it is also the largest, example of its kind, is to be given to the British Museum.

The pavement has been recently bought by Mr. H. C. Currie, the owner of the hall, and the museum officials, and has yet to be approved by the trustees.

"It will be a very elaborate pavement," said the authority, "and is under a covering of a foot of soil. It is by any of the best hands. Expert workers will go to Harton-on-Tyne to do the removal, which will have to be performed with extreme care."

"Once the pavement has arrived at the museum it will require several years to reconstruct entirely, although certain portions will doubtless be completed at earlier intervals."

The pavement, which measures 45 feet by 24 feet, was unearthed by accident in a kitchen garden in 1784 at a depth of three feet.

For more than 20 years, with a view to its preservation, it has lain under a covering of a foot of soil. Its age is estimated to be over 1,500 years, and it is supposed to have been the floor of a private "cave" or part of the pavilion of a Roman military officer.

Consisting of thousands of small, round, four-inch square, the pavement is colored terracotta work.

New Use For Helium

May be Substituted for Nitrogen in Air of Diving Belts

When helium was first discovered, it was considered a sort of scientific toy, and was obtainable only in extremely small quantities. Then it came to be used in the construction of balloons, and was used to take the place of hydrogen in airships. Experiments are now in progress to substitute it for nitrogen in the air of diving belts. The nitrogen under high pressure enters the tissues of the bodies of the divers, and causes the "bends," or other serious accidents. Helium, on the other hand, does not enter the tissues, and is therefore a much safer gas. The discovery has an economic value for helium it will be possible for divers to descend to the bottom of the Bay of Vigo and secure millions of gold from sunken Spanish galleons.

Newspaper Advertising Best

Reaches More People and Makes Best Impression

Newspaper advertising is, of all the advertising mediums, the best, because it reaches most people most of the time, and makes the best impression. On every land on this continent, the newspapers are the greatest advertising medium. The newspapers that would not have been today but for their well-planned and steady advertising campaign, would not be so successful. If the article or the product has quality, the newspaper advertisement will sell it. The number of people that kind of an advertisement reaches makes no matter.

Anglo-American Relations

Friendship That is Real Cannot Be Broken

In the world as yet, after seven years of the League of Nations, there is nowhere to be seen too much love on the part of any nation at all for any other. But as between America and Britain there is in fact the closest and most intimate of relations. Between many millions on this side, and many millions on the other, there is not only love, but a friendship that is real and unbreakable. It is indeed a fact to stick to it, and they will be even the last.

Farmers' Wives Constitute the Board of Directors

The women of Saskatchewan are winning their share in the egg and poultry field. At the first general meeting of the Saskatchewan Egg and Poultry Pool, the directors of which, all but one, are the wives of farmers, the report of the year's business showed a turnover of $257,117. The pool began business in the month of March, 1926. During the year it handled 1,199,347 dozen eggs and $100,000 of poultry. At the close of the year the pool had sold 40,000 shares capital amounting to $12,274 and a reserve of $7,700. The membership is approximately 16,000.

CHAPTER I

It all began with the little of all.

When Helmi's Aunt Lili came back to Finland for a visit, after six years of the crowded days of life in America, the older women told of her family regarded her with mingled feelings of awe, envy and reproach.

Her older sister, Helmi's mother, said it was foolishness for a girl who had to earn her money hard, carrying trays, to put it all on her back and wear clothes that only queens should be wearing. At which Aunt Lili laughed, showing her gold teeth, and said it was a matter of principle with her to spend her money so fast that no one could steal it from her! Helmi was the one member of the family who gave the visitor full hearted and unreserved devotion. She loved the rich sound of her sister's silk, and it was no accident, indeed, to raise the whole family to a high er social level, and she marvelled how anyone, even her mother, would dare to find fault with the woman who had been with the world for half a century. Helmi's mother, a plain person who wore silk stockings, had for on the inside of her coat, and pink ribbons in her garters that did not show at all!

Aunt Lili had not spent all her money on her own clothes. To Helmi's mother she had brought a piece which she had worn in Finland. It was a simple, dark dress, with a high collar, and two rows of black lace on the shoulders.

It was a dress which she had worn

Moderation in Exercise

If Carried to Excess It May Become

Dangerous to Health

Do not envy Samson or Hercules.

The strong man, says an expert advice, is often the one who weakens first in the struggle for life. The man with moderate physical strength is the one who is likely to retain his health the longest and to get more enjoyment out of life.

A man who devotes much of his

Would Girdle the Globe

Calcutta Number of Papers Printed
Every Week on Boulevard Street,
London

For many years the "News of the World" has been produced at Boulevard street—a comparatively short thoroughfare leading southwards from

Fleet street to the Thames embankment.

Despite its size, Boulevard street produces more newspapers than any other street in the world. If the pages of the papers sent out of this small thoroughfare in a week were placed end to end they would girdle the globe.

The vast weekly issue of the "News of the World" would provide a quarter of this belt, for, if the pages were placed end to end, they would make a pathway from London, across the Atlantic, across the United States, and a few hundred miles out into the Pacific Ocean on the way to Japan.

About 22,000,000 newspapers are published in Boulevard street each week, making a breathtaking total of 1,200,000,000 copies per annum.

To get the 4,000,000 copies of the "News of the World" to the time to distribute them over the length and breadth of the British Isles on Sunday morning and over the rest of the world as fast as great trains can carry them, the battery of printing presses must produce copies of the "News of the World" at the rate of 7,000 per minute, or 420,000 per hour.

Each issue requires 200 tons of white paper, 16,000 lbs. of black ink, and to tie up the parcels, 70 miles of string.

A new building in scores of communes has been the most modern in existence.

The extra advantage—

this extra process that is exclusive to Firestone, is your assurance of greater tire fort. See your nearest

LOTS OF LOW-PRICED TIRES — And OURS are GOODYEARS

SOME of our good friends went elsewhere for tires when rubber was high. They had to have low price and we couldn't give them both low price and Goodyear quality.

Today we can. We can give you a Goodyear Tire for no more than you were paying for 'gyp' tires. Ask us for prices.

Every cord and balloon in the list built with SUPER-TWIST Cords. Every tire with a tough, rugged tread. Come in and see them.
